SUMMARY

1. We, the participants of the second High-Level Meeting of the Global Partnership for Effective Development Co-operation, are committed to effective development co-operation as a means to achieve the universal and inter-related Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). We met in Nairobi, Kenya, on 28 November-1 December 2016 to reaffirm the spirit of partnership in which we recognized our unity of purpose, inter-dependence and respective responsibilities.
2. We believe that effective development co-operation can arise from inclusion, trust and innovation, founded on respect by all partners for the use of national strategies and country results frameworks.
3. The universality of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development means that the donor-recipient relationships of the past have been replaced by approaches that view all stakeholders as equal and interdependent partners in development. The Global Partnership champions this approach, and seeks to maximise the effectiveness and impact of all forms of co-operation for development. We do this in partnership to achieve the broad vision of increased well-being for people and the planet, prosperity and peace.
4. Our vision is consistent with agreed international commitments on environmental sustainability, human rights, decent work, gender equality and the elimination of all forms of discrimination.
5. Our Monitoring Framework is a unique instrument for mutual accountability. We will continue to use it to monitor implementation of our commitments through country-led and country-based processes. This monitoring will contribute directly to the United Nations High-Level Political Forum follow-up and review of the implementation of the SDGs. We will evolve and strengthen our monitoring to deepen mutual learning, mutual benefit and mutual accountability.
6. To deliver on this vision, we will collectively and individually take urgent action in line with the Busan Principles, applicable to all partners – ownership of development priorities by developing countries, a focus on results, inclusive development partnerships and transparency and accountability.
7. We embrace the diversity that underpins our partnership and recognise the complementary contributions of all stakeholders. While our principles and commitments are common to all members of the Global Partnership, each partner will deliver on its respective commitments, specific to their constituency.
8. We reaffirm all previous commitments made in Rome (2003), Paris (2005), Accra (2008), Busan (2011) and the first High-Level Meeting of the Global Partnership for Effective Development Co-operation in Mexico City (2014). We commit to energise the implementation of these commitments with a pledge of leaving no-one behind.
9. To accelerate progress in our joint commitments, we will strengthen country ownership of development priorities. We will:
  - a. work with parliaments to improve their scrutiny of all development co-operation; we will empower local governments to localise the SDGs, and support communities to interact with them;

- b. develop and support transparent, accountable and inclusive national development strategies, and encourage alignment of all partners to those strategies where feasible; and
- c. strengthen and use country systems, improve harmonisation by providers of development co-operation, and support the inclusion of the local business sector and civil society in procurement processes.

10. To strengthen the focus on results, we will:

- a. further develop, support and use country-level results frameworks; progressively adapt results frameworks to reflect the targets and indicators of the SDGs; and make data on results publicly available; and
- b. further develop, support and use national statistical systems, and generate disaggregated data to report on progress.

11. To promote inclusive development partnerships, we will:

- a. increase our efforts to ensure an enabling environment for all partners, including parliaments, local governments, civil society, the business sector, philanthropy and trade unions, and support country-level platforms for collaboration;
- b. foster enabling policy environments for the business sector to support responsible, inclusive and sustainable business practices; and support structured dialogue and partnership to promote these approaches;
- c. support civil society in playing its full role as an independent development actor in its own right, ensuring its operations are as effective as possible; and
- d. work with philanthropy to maximise its specific contribution to sustainable development, including through public-philanthropic partnerships.

12. To strengthen transparency and accountability to each other, we will:

- a. improve publication of open data on development co-operation, and support the use of this data by all relevant stakeholders;
- b. update mutual accountability arrangements at country level to include all relevant development partners, in an inclusive and transparent manner;
- c. improve the capacity of local authorities and parliaments to provide transparent information to citizens on the use of resources; and
- d. support the business sector to adopt transparent and accountable management systems of public and private funds, and to account for the social, environmental and economic impacts of its value chain.

13. We are committed to ensuring that no-one is left behind by the development process and by development co-operation specifically.
14. We will invest in science, technology and innovation as a driver of effective development co-operation.
15. We will support fragile and conflict-affected countries in accessing the resources and partnerships needed to advance specific development priorities. Building on the New Deal for Engagement in Fragile States, we will work to enhance engagement between development, peacebuilding, security and humanitarian partners and efforts. We will promote peer learning between fragile and conflict-affected environments.
16. We recognise that women's and girls' rights, gender equality and the empowerment of women and girls are both stand-alone goals and a cross-cutting issue to achieving sustainable development. We will accelerate efforts to achieve these aims by deepening multi-stakeholder partnerships and tracking resource allocations for these endeavours; strengthening capacity for gender-responsive budgeting and planning; and increasing the participation of women's organisations in partnerships for development.
17. We reiterate our commitment to invest in the development of children and youth. We will urgently improve reporting on child-focused development co-operation and domestic resources, and strengthen capacity for youth to participate in accountability exercises.
18. We recognise the specific issues facing Middle Income Countries (MICs) and will ensure that development co-operation addresses these. We will also promote effective South-South Co-operation and Triangular Co-operation.
19. In the spirit of partnership, we will further improve our ways of working together and offer a voice to all stakeholders. In order to do so, we will:
  - a. broaden our partnership to include all interested stakeholders;
  - b. support effective co-operation at country level, including through inclusive country-level partnerships;
  - c. improve the practical utility of regional mechanisms and platforms, and make better use of the experience of Global Partnership Initiatives;
  - d. place demand-driven knowledge sharing and learning at the heart of our work, including through bringing together communities of practice to find solutions to specific challenges; and
  - e. continue to update our governance arrangements to ensure that all partners are heard and can steer the work of the Global Partnership.

PART ONE: OPPORTUNITIES AND CHALLENGES

PREAMBLE

1. We, Heads of State and Government; ministers and high representatives of developing and developed countries; as well as heads of multilateral and bilateral development agencies, financial and regional development institutions; parliaments; local governments; representatives of the business sector; civil society; trade unions and philanthropy, met in Nairobi, Kenya, to take stock of the implementation of principles and commitments of effective development co-operation, and to shape how existing and new development partners can work together effectively to accelerate the realisation of sustainable development, including the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.
2. This Nairobi High-Level Meeting builds on effective development co-operation commitments that we hereby reaffirm and that are embodied in the Rome Declaration on Harmonisation (2003), the Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness (2005), the Accra Agenda for Action (2008), the Fourth High-Level Forum on Aid Effectiveness in Busan (2011), where the Global Partnership for Effective Development Co-operation (hereafter 'The Global Partnership') was established; and the Communiqué of the First High-Level Meeting of the Global Partnership in Mexico City (2014).
3. We met in a spirit of inclusion and solidarity, and held fruitful discussions on the progress and challenges for effective development co-operation, and the Global Partnership's contribution to realising the 2030 Agenda. We noted the importance of North-South, South-South and Triangular Co-operation; the business sector; role of civil society; gender equality and the empowerment of women and girls; the economic empowerment of youth; leaving no-one behind; and unleashing the power of partnerships.
4. We recognise the significant progress made in the implementation of the Millennium Development Goals. These include reducing the levels of extreme poverty, disease and hunger, and reducing gender disparities in primary education enrollment and political participation. We note that progress has been slow and uneven within and between countries. Though levels of poverty and inequality remain high, especially in Africa, least developed countries, landlocked developing countries, small-island developing states and countries affected by conflict and fragility, and with serious challenges in many Middle Income Countries, we believe that effective development co-operation is in our common interest.
5. Exposure to risks and the inability to cope with the serious adverse effects of climate change; global economic and social shocks; shrinking civic space; the digital divide and the divide in science, technology and innovation; the youth bulge; persistent gender inequality and pervasive violence and discrimination against women and girls; the challenges faced by people living with disabilities; unemployment, underemployment and non-resilient livelihoods; migration challenges; physical insecurity and violence; and the threat of terrorism are part of our shared reality and must be addressed through partnership.
6. At the same time, we recognise the opportunities that come with appropriate policies for fostering science, technology and innovation; promoting the rule of law and ensuring equal access to justice for all; advancing women's empowerment; and harnessing the gains that can come from the demographic dividend through improved policies for youth employment, education and health.

7. This was the Global Partnership's first High-Level Meeting after governments of the world – with the support of all development partners – adopted the 2030 Agenda; the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction; the Addis Ababa Action Agenda; the Paris Agreement and its subsequent entry into force; the Political Declaration on the occasion of the 20th Anniversary of the Fourth World Conference on Women; and the New Urban Agenda. It was also the first meeting after the World Humanitarian Summit. We strongly believe that the principles of effective development co-operation—country ownership of development priorities by partner countries; a focus on results; inclusive development partnerships; and transparency and mutual accountability—are consistent with our agreed international commitments on human rights, decent work, gender equality, environmental sustainability and disability. These are critical means of implementation for the realisation of the 2030 Agenda.
8. We are inspired by the 2030 Agenda. This is an ambitious and transformative plan of action for eradicating poverty in all its forms. We note that the 2030 Agenda calls for all countries and all stakeholders to act in partnership to implement it. It also encourages all countries to undertake adjustment to national goals, policies and institutional arrangements.
9. We reaffirm in particular the 2030 Agenda's pledge to leave no-one behind as a philosophy that imbues our work and recognise that development co-operation must leave no-one behind to be effective. We further recognise that trust-building behaviour must be a conscious and explicit element of this shared endeavour. Here in Nairobi, we, representatives of all development partners, pledge ourselves to this cause.
10. The universality of the 2030 Agenda means that donor-recipient relationships must view all stakeholders as equal and interdependent partners in development. The Global Partnership has always championed this approach. To this end, we recognise partner countries that receive support, partner countries that provide support, and partner countries that both provide and receive support. In the spirit and practice of inclusion, we further recognise the large and diverse array of partners in development that already, and may in the future, contribute to effective development based on their respective assets and capabilities.
11. We recognise the Addis Ababa Action Agenda as an integral part of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, which supports, complements and helps to contextualise the 2030 Agenda's means of implementation targets. We acknowledge that the new Agenda requires—inter alia—effective development co-operation and inclusive multi-stakeholder partnerships.
12. We take cognizance of the Istanbul Programme of Action for Least-Developed Countries, the Vienna Programme of Action for Landlocked Developing Countries, and the Small Island Developing States Accelerated Modalities of Action (SAMOA) Pathway. We will work in accordance with the New Deal for Engagement in Fragile States. We reiterate our commitment to apply the principles of effective development co-operation adapted to each stakeholder's capabilities and ambitions in order to reflect each constituent's modalities and unique contribution to accelerate realisation of the 2030 Agenda.

DEVELOPMENT CO-OPERATION: PRESENT AND FUTURE

13. We recognise that the development co-operation landscape has changed significantly over the last decade. Today, development co-operation encompasses a broad area of international action featuring several financial and non-financial modalities, including financial transfers, capacity-building, technology development and transfer on voluntary and mutually-agreed terms, policy change (for example, to ensure coherence of domestic policies and help to address global systemic issues) and multi-stakeholder partnerships.
14. The 2030 Agenda requires an improvement in the quality, quantity and diversity of assets and resources if we are to achieve the SDGs and leave no-one behind. Central to this universal agenda is a change in outlook and behavior, where inter-dependence drives collaboration.
15. We recognise that sustained, inclusive and sustainable economic growth, supported by sound macroeconomic policies, and an enabling environment at all levels, are of paramount importance to realise the 2030 Agenda. This is, first and foremost, driven by domestic resources. The mobilisation and effective use of domestic resources to support national development priorities and the 2030 Agenda is critical for sustainable long-term, country-owned development. We underscore that sustainable domestic resource growth is first and foremost generated by diversified and inclusive economic activity supported by an enabling environment. We acknowledge that this is, in part, enabled by a universal, rules-based, open, transparent, predictable, inclusive, non-discriminatory and equitable multilateral trading system.
16. We attach high importance to the pursuit of sustainable development through the business sector. We view the challenge to leave no-one behind as an opportunity for private capital to increase prosperity and raise public revenue, drive down the cost of access to goods and services, and promote sustained, inclusive and sustainable economic growth, including through the digital economy. Dialogue and partnership between government, the business sector, workers' representatives and other stakeholders can make this possible. We therefore acknowledge the importance of collaboration to create an enabling environment for the formal and informal business sectors in all countries. This is to be complemented by trust-building and steps taken by the business sector towards responsible business, including through respect for internationally-agreed labour and environmental standards.
17. We welcome the significant financial and non-financial contribution philanthropy has made towards sustainable development. We acknowledge that this is, in part, made possible by a conducive enabling environment for philanthropy, including in legal, fiscal and regulatory terms.
18. We recognise the importance of civil society in sustainable development and in leaving no-one behind; in engaging with governments to uphold their commitments; and in being development actors in their own right. We are determined to reverse the trend of shrinking of civic space wherever it is taking place and to build a positive environment for sustainable development, peaceful societies, accountable governance and achievement of the SDGs and the 2030 Agenda. We commit to accelerating progress in providing an enabling environment for civil society, including in legal and regulatory terms, in line with internationally agreed rights. In this context, we encourage inclusive multi-stakeholder dialogue at country level, supported by capacity building measures.

19. We further recognise that gender equality, women's empowerment and women's full and equal participation in leadership in the economy, including the digital economy, are vital to achieving sustainable development and significantly enhance economic growth and productivity. We will promote social inclusion in our domestic policies and promote and enforce non-discriminatory laws, social infrastructure and policies for sustainable development, as well as enable women's full and equal participation in the economy, and their equal access to decision-making process and leadership. We further commit to redress vulnerability and lack of protections to promote decent work.
20. We recognise the Addis Tax Initiative as a way to boost domestic resource mobilisation, and call on development partners providing and receiving development support and other official flows to associate themselves with this initiative. We welcome the report entitled 'Enhancing the Effectiveness of External Support in Building Tax Capacity in Developing Countries' for effective technical assistance in support of tax reforms prepared by IMF, OECD, United Nations and World Bank under the Platform for Collaboration on Tax. We welcome the ongoing efforts, including the work of the Global Forum on Transparency and Exchange of Information for Tax Purposes. We take into account the work of the OECD for the Group of 20 on base erosion and profit shifting.
21. We recognise that international migration requires coherent and comprehensive policy frameworks that promote safe, regular and orderly migration based on the rights of all refugees and migrants. These can enable countries to optimise the potential of refugee and migrant contributions to social and economic development in their host countries, in transit, in their countries of origin, and globally, as referred to in the New York Declaration for Refugees and Migrants, adopted in September 2016. We note the need to address the drivers of large movements of refugees and migrants as stated in paragraph 37 of the Declaration, as well as of making migration a choice and not a necessity, as stated in paragraph 43.
22. We emphasise that the quality and quantity of development co-operation is important for inclusive and sustainable economic growth that also addresses social and environmental impacts. In this regard, we stress the importance of promoting quality infrastructure investment, including digital infrastructure, for—inter alia—economic efficiency in view of lifecycle costs, safety, resilience, decent job creation, capacity building, and transfer of expertise and know-how.
23. An important use of international public finance, including ODA, is to catalyse additional resource mobilisation from other sources, public and private. It can support improved tax collection and help to strengthen domestic enabling environments and build essential public services. It can also be used to unlock additional finance through blended or pooled financing and risk mitigation, notably for infrastructure and other investments that support private sector development. Providers of ODA reaffirm their respective ODA commitments, including the commitment by many developed countries to achieve the target of 0.7 per cent of ODA / GNI and 0.15 to 0.20 per cent of ODA / GNI to least developed countries by 2030.
24. We reaffirm the importance of meeting existing commitments under international conventions in full, including on climate change and related global challenges. We recognise that funding from all sources, including public and private, bilateral and multilateral, as well as alternative sources of finance, will need to be stepped up for investments in many areas including for low-carbon and climate resilient development. We recognise that, in the context of meaningful mitigation actions and transparency on implementation, developed countries committed to a goal of mobilising jointly US$100 billion a year by 2020 from a wide variety of sources to address the needs of developing countries.

25. Partners in South-South Co-operation value principles of respect for national sovereignty, national ownership and independence, equality, non-conditionality, demand-driven support, noninterference in domestic affairs and mutual benefit. We underline the importance and potential of South-South Co-operation as an increasingly potent feature of international co-operation for development. Its scope and variety presents opportunities to tackle the challenges of the 2030 Agenda, particularly in least-developed countries and other partner countries. It is also underpinned by principles of effective development co-operation in accordance with the 2009 Nairobi Outcome Document of the High-Level United Nations Conference on South-South Co-operation. The application of these principles, adapted to the particular context and modalities of each partner, can help to increase the quality and impact of South-South development co-operation in all its forms.
26. We note that South-South Co-operation is a demonstration of solidarity among developing countries and an increasingly important feature of international development architecture, which complements, and does not substitute North-South co-operation. We encourage partner countries receiving support to voluntarily step up their efforts to strengthen the role of South-South Co-operation in the implementation of the 2030 Agenda. We appreciate ongoing efforts made by Southern partners to enhance the effectiveness of development co-operation in accordance with the 2009 Nairobi Outcome, including by continuing to increase accountability and transparency. We welcome ongoing efforts to better manage and increase the quality and impact of South-South Co-operation. We look forward to the 40th anniversary of the 1978 Buenos Aires Plan of Action as an opportunity to further strengthen effective South-South development co-operation.
27. We acknowledge that Triangular Co-operation offers practical modalities that can promote inclusive partnerships for the SDGs. Triangular Co-operation, like other modes of co-operation, places the role and will of partner countries receiving support at the centre, while providing an opportunity to bring together a diversity of experience, lessons and assets from southern and northern partners, as well as from multilateral, regional, bilateral development and financial institutions. As such, we note that Triangular Co-operation, led by host countries and between different combinations of partners, has enormous potential to promote mutual accountability, mutual benefits and mutual learning.
28. We recognise that Middle Income Countries (MICS) can play a particularly important role in the provision of regional and global public goods such as biodiversity and climate stability. Effective development co-operation should take this into consideration and support MICS in their efforts to protect these regional and global public goods to reduce instability and international risks for all.
29. We stress the growing importance of Fragile-to-Fragile Co-operation between states affected by conflict or fragility in promoting peace-building and state building assistance. We welcome the work of the g7+ in this area and its potential to contribute to the advancement of the SDGs, particularly Goal 16: Peace and Justice.

THE UNIQUE ROLE OF THE MONITORING FRAMEWORK

30. The Global Partnership Monitoring Framework is the main instrument for the Global Partnership to support the global follow-up and review of the implementation of the SDGs at the United Nations High-Level Political Forum (HLPF). This contribution is explicitly reflected in, and will inform, the measurement of Target 17.16<sup>1</sup>. The Monitoring Framework will complement and not duplicate the follow-up and review processes and indicators of the 2030 Agenda, the SDGs and the Addis Ababa Action Agenda.
31. The primary utility of monitoring the effectiveness of development co-operation is at the country level, where government-led processes can use monitoring exercises to ensure that development co-operation observes our shared principles and supports realisation of our respective commitments. Preparation and conduct of the monitoring rounds is one of the key contributions of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) to the Global Partnership. The evidence that is produced by the Monitoring Framework can strengthen commitments to effective development co-operation. International organisations, the business sector, local governments, civil society and all the partners who are engaged can similarly benefit, as the Monitoring Framework helps to build mutual accountability, mutual benefit and mutual learning. This is why we believe that the Monitoring Framework can change practices and behavior in development partnerships.
32. We take note of the findings of the 2016 Progress Report of the Global Partnership, 'Making Development Co-operation More Effective.' This is the only report of its kind that measures the effectiveness of development co-operation in a comprehensive manner, and will inform follow-up and review of SDGs 5 and 17. The 2016 round enjoyed record levels of participation. Annex 2 provides a summary of the findings that informed the rest of this Outcome Document.

PART TWO: OUR SHARED PURPOSE

VISION

The vision of the Global Partnership is to maximise the effectiveness of all forms of co-operation for development for the shared benefits of people, planet, prosperity and peace.

PRINCIPLES AND COMMITMENTS

33. Based on the prevailing global context and learning from the findings of the 2016 monitoring round, we re-dedicate ourselves to the four principles of the Global Partnership – ownership of development priorities by developing countries, a focus on results, inclusive development partnerships and transparency and accountability.
34. We endorse the following commitments, which will enable us to sustain political momentum and practical action for effective development co-operation in support of the successful implementation of the 2030 Agenda.

<sup>1</sup> "Enhance the Global Partnership for Sustainable Development, complemented by multi-stakeholder partnerships that mobilize and share knowledge, expertise, technology and financial resources, to support the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals in all countries, in particular developing countries." The framework also contributes to the measurement of SDG Indicators 5.1.c and 17.15.1.

35. The four principles of effective development co-operation provide the underlying unity of purpose that drives the work of the Global Partnership. We believe that they offer value to all stakeholders irrespective of character and role.
36. We recognise that much remains to be done to fulfill the commitments made in the Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness and the Accra Action Agenda, despite their continued relevance to the evolving effective development co-operation agenda. Those of us who endorsed those agreements renew their full commitment to achieve this unfinished business, with particular reference to the relevant policy commitments identified in the current monitoring framework that were initiated in Paris and Accra. We will develop time-bound action plans in relation to these commitments.

Principle 1. Ownership of Development Priorities by Partner Countries Receiving Support

37. We reaffirm that each country has primary responsibility for its own economic and social development and that the role of national policies and development strategies cannot be overemphasised. We recognise the centrality of inclusive national policies and development strategies as the guiding strategic frameworks for all partners, while remaining consistent with relevant international rules and commitments.
38. We believe that country development strategies and processes, at various levels, should be developed, implemented, monitored and evaluated in a transparent and accountable manner. We note with concern, however, the slow progress made by some partners providing support with alignment to the national development strategies, planning processes and budgeting systems of countries receiving support. This includes national actions plans on gender equality and the empowerment of women.
39. We will support an enabling environment necessary for a diversity of innovation, including through the application of the traditional knowledge of indigenous peoples that can contribute to national development objectives. Inclusion of all the assets available to a society is as important to completing the unfinished business of development co-operation as it is to tackling new and emerging challenges.
40. We will develop capacities for our national tax authorities, enhance accountability mechanisms for businesses and financial institutions, eliminate gender bias in tax systems and help combat illicit financial flows. We will strive to eliminate safe havens that create incentives for transfer abroad of stolen assets and illicit financial flows.
41. We will promote innovations that can reduce the average transaction cost of migrant remittances to less than three per cent of the amount transferred and ensure that no remittance corridor requires charges higher than five per cent by 2030, mindful of the need to maintain adequate service coverage, especially for those most in need.

National Governments

42. Partner countries receiving support commit to:

- a. develop or strengthen effective, inclusive, nationally-owned development strategies to implement the 2030 Agenda; and planning and budgeting systems and processes, considering our commitments to develop ambitious responses to the SDGs;
- b. exercise accountable, strong leadership and inclusive ownership of the national development agenda and conduct thorough transparent and regular consultations with relevant stakeholders, where applicable, in order to improve the effectiveness of spending and financial management. Specific efforts will be made to ensure participation of women rights' organisations and of marginalised communities and groups;
- c. monitor and ensure, in active partnership with parliaments and civil society, that support of development partners falls within the ambit of the national policy and development strategy priorities, and reflects citizens' priorities and needs;

f. provide capacity building and technical assistance for public financial management and procurement systems where needed and in consultation with partner countries receiving support;

g. accelerate untying of aid, and promote development co-operation that supports local businesses throughout the supply chain;

h. support capacity development for national business sectors and civil society to fully participate in national and international procurement, while adhering to, and respecting international commitments, including those on the environment, labour and peaceful and inclusive societies;

i. support nationally-led engagement with all development partners, including civil society organisations such as those focusing on women's rights, labour organisations and marginalised communities, to engage meaningfully in planning, budgeting and monitoring development strategies and plans; and

j. accelerate progress in aligning bilateral development co-operation with the inclusive national development strategies and planning processes of partner countries receiving support.

Parliaments

44. We acknowledge the essential role of national parliaments through enactment of legislation and adoption of budgets related to the 2030 Agenda. We further acknowledge the central role of parliaments in ensuring oversight and accountability for the effective implementation of national and international commitments, including public-private partnerships. We will strengthen the capacity of parliaments in their role as the principal institutions of representation, legislation and oversight.

45. Partner countries receiving support commit to:

a. submit national aid or development co-operation policies and information to parliament for review;

b. present progress reports on the implementation of the policies / programmes to their respective parliaments annually, where applicable; and

c. share information with parliaments, to promote and support their full participation in processes for developing and reviewing policies and modalities for development co-operation.

46. Partners countries providing support commit to:

a. ensure that development policies and their implementation are supported and scrutinised by parliaments;

- b. present progress reports on the implementation of policies and programmes to their respective parliaments annually, where applicable;
- c. share information with their own parliaments and promote and support the full participation of the national parliament in processes for developing and reviewing key policies related to development co-operation; and
- d. work with parliament to promote predictability in commitments and disbursement of development support.

Local Governments

47. We recognise the importance of local governments in strengthening the relationship between citizens and government, the business sector and other stakeholders, and ensuring the localisation of the SDGs and the 2030 Agenda.
48. Therefore, we commit to:
- a. strengthen the capacity of local governments to enable them to fully assume their roles in service delivery, enhancing participation and accountability at the local level;
  - b. include local governments in consultations regarding development strategies to localise the SDGs; support capacity-building for delivery of basic services and infrastructure; strengthen local expenditure management and revenue mobilisation; enhance inclusive and sustainable urbanisation and local governments' participation in national and local planning, within the context of national sustainable development strategies; and
  - c. support the implementation of the SDGs and effective development principles at the local level, promoting a stronger collaboration between all levels of governance, to ensure that national development plans are better aligned with local development plans and initiatives, and local communities.
49. The business sector and philanthropy will work to align their engagement to national development strategies and plans of partner countries receiving support, and to the 2030 Agenda to maximise business and societal value.
50. Civil society partners commit to:
- a. adhere to the Istanbul Principles as relevant to ensuring country-level ownership of their initiatives, including participation, empowerment and the pursuit of equitable partnerships;
  - b. accelerate efforts to achieve gender equality and the empowerment of women through development programmes grounded in country priorities, recognising that gender equality and women's empowerment are critical to achieving development results;
  - c. embody gender equality and equity while promoting women and girls' rights; and promote and practice development co-operation embodying gender equity, reflecting women's concerns and experience, while supporting women's efforts to realise their individual and collective rights, participating as fully empowered actors in the development process; and

d. support the empowerment and inclusive participation of people to expand their democratic ownership over policies and development initiatives that affect their lives, with an emphasis on the poor and marginalised.

Principle 2. Focus on Results

51. We acknowledge the role of inclusive country-led results frameworks in assisting partner countries receiving support to manage for development results and ownership. Countries providing support should assist with the development and implementation of national results frameworks through a transparent, participatory and multi-stakeholder process in line with the multi-stakeholder nature of the Global Partnership.

52. We recognise that high-quality, accessible, timely and reliable data disaggregated by age, sex, income, disability, race, ethnicity, migratory status, geography and other characteristics relevant in national contexts will be needed to help in the measurement of progress in development co-operation. We affirm our commitment to help develop partner country capacities in this regard. This will improve national monitoring exercises and public debates in partner countries receiving support.

53. In countries affected by conflict and fragility, national results frameworks must be developed based on a country-led inclusive assessment of the country's own fragility, committed to in the New Deal for Engagement in Fragile and Conflict Affected States. In these contexts, the process of compiling such a national results framework can itself contribute to the consolidation of peace.

54. Partner countries receiving support commit to:

a. adapt their national results frameworks to strengthen linkages with national development priorities and SDG-related targets and indicators;

b. strengthen their results frameworks, including through identifying meaningful and measurable indicators and realistic and robust targets; and improving national monitoring and evaluation systems; and

c. ensure that national results frameworks have appropriate disaggregation and are used to drive performance, improve development outcomes, facilitate multi-stakeholder participation and ensure no-one is left behind.

55. Development partners providing support commit to:

a. use country-led results frameworks and associated national systems for statistics and for monitoring and evaluation in planning, delivering and monitoring development interventions as a matter of urgency;

b. support the development and implementation of these results frameworks and associated systems in countries that have not yet been able to develop them;

c. support the strengthening the statistical capacity and monitoring and evaluation systems of partner countries receiving support, with the aim of enhancing data collection and analysis, including data disaggregated by age, sex and location for use in policy-making, planning, budgeting and reporting on implementation of 2030 Agenda; and

d. develop the capacities of partner countries receiving support to integrate the SDGs into national development plans and corresponding country results frameworks.

56. We acknowledge that South-South Co-operation is committed through its own processes to:

a. recognise that its impact should be assessed with a view to improving, as appropriate, its quality in a results-oriented manner; and

b. disseminate results, share lessons and good practices, and replicate initiatives, including through the voluntary exchange of experience for the benefit of developing countries, according to their policies and priorities for development.

57. The business sector will work to:

a. bring core business competencies to sustainable development, for instance through supply chain management, customer engagement and product design and delivery;

b. set up reporting and accountability systems on the environmental, economic and social impacts of their efforts, in particular on the generation of full and productive employment and decent work for all;

c. collaborate with national counterparts to innovate in areas such as service delivery, for example through the digitisation of service delivery infrastructure and products aimed at untapped market segments; and

d. contribute to industry awareness of the commercial and societal benefits of socially inclusive and environmentally sustainable business models and practices.

58. Civil society partners commit to be guided by national results frameworks in the execution of their work, as relevant to their role as independent development partners in their own right. They will:

a. develop and implement priorities and approaches that promote environmental sustainability for present and future generations, including urgent responses to climate crises, with specific attention to the socio-economic, cultural and indigenous conditions for ecological integrity and justice; and

b. enhance the ways they learn from their experience, from other CSOs and development actors, integrating evidence from development practice and results, including the knowledge and wisdom of local and indigenous communities, strengthening innovation and their vision for the future they would like to see.

Principle 3. Inclusive Partnerships

59. We recognise that inclusive multi-stakeholder partnerships are necessary for the realisation of effective development co-operation and for reaching the SDGs. Where partnerships include development efforts of national governments and other development partners, the contributions of all partners should actively engender trust, be co-ordinated and complementary.

60. In this context, we the Global Partnership commit to:

- a. increase our efforts to ensure an enabling environment for inclusive, multi-stakeholder partnerships, including through country-level platforms for collaboration, to perform complementary roles in a transparent and accountable manner;
- b. strengthen and deepen partnerships with the business sector, civil society organisations, philanthropy, parliaments, local governments and trade unions to achieve local, national, sub-regional, regional and global development goals;
- c. utilise effective development co-operation to attract business investment, engaging business entities in a partnership that mutually benefits business strategies and development goals. We will review and adapt instruments for partnerships to ensure that development co-operation plays a catalytic role;
- d. increase the quality, quantity and diversity of resources that will enable productive multi-stakeholder partnerships at the country level, including capacity support. We recognise that knowledge sharing and technology transfer on voluntary and mutually-agreed terms can be a powerful driver of economic growth and sustainable development;
- e. strengthen our commitment to supporting related international partnerships for bringing effective development co-operation principles to unique contexts, such as the International Dialogue on Peace-building and State-building, with its focus on engagement in fragile and conflict-affected states;
- f. utilise Triangular Co-operation as an approach to multi-stakeholder engagement that can promote mutual benefits; and
- g. report on our partnership to the United Nations High-Level Political Forum.

61. We endorse the commitments to and of specific stakeholders whose engagement is crucial to the growth and vitality of the Global Partnership. These commitments hold equal standing with the commitments presented above, and are in full accordance with the principles of effective development co-operation.

The Business Sector

62. We recognise that the 2030 Agenda provides a framework within which businesses at both national and international levels can invest; that the wellbeing of people and planet are in the interest of the business sector; and that the business sector can be a significant force driving prosperity and peace in support of achieving the SDGs. We acknowledge growing evidence that the core characteristics of the business sector can and do create mutual benefit by contributing to the public good. We view the challenge to leave no-one behind as an opportunity for stakeholders to partner with the business sector and co-create inclusive and sustainable prosperity.

63. To this end, we commend businesses that already consider social inclusion and environmental sustainability as core to their business models and practices. We recognise that such investments can – and do – build trust and the ‘social license’ for businesses to prosper. We will provide the platform for the business sector to explore, share, adopt or adapt practical approaches suited to each market context. This can help to ensure fair and transparent risk-sharing and alignment with the implementation of the 2030 Agenda.

64. Partner countries receiving support commit to:

- a. foster enabling policy environments for and with businesses, especially small- and medium-scale domestic businesses; and work to improve the fairness, transparency, efficiency and effectiveness of our tax systems;
- b. encourage tax compliance and systems not undermined by wasteful tax incentives and other conditions essential for mobilising domestic and international capital to advance the 2030 Agenda;
- c. promote public-private partnerships for decent work for women, migrants, people living with disabilities and other vulnerable groups working in the informal sector; and
- d. recognise the importance of social dialogue in building trust that leads to ‘social license,’ and its utility for informing business strategy within the overarching framework of national SDG objectives.

65. Development partners providing support commit to:

- a. engage with the business sector through social dialogue and partnerships with labour to support socially-inclusive and environmentally-sustainable business practices, including and extending beyond corporate social responsibility and the economic empowerment of women;
- b. contribute to trust building, for instance through disclosure practices and transparency by multinational companies in both source and destination countries, and in accordance with national and international law. This includes seeking to ensure transparency in all financial transactions between governments and businesses to relevant tax authorities;
- c. encourage all companies, including multinational companies, to pay taxes to the governments of countries where economic activity occurs and value is created, in accordance with national and international laws and policies; and
- d. continue to modify institutional incentives, policies and procedures to intensify engagement with the business sector.

Civil Society

66. We recognise the essential role of civil society as an independent partner in its own right, working within national policies and towards effective development co-operation, poverty reduction, tackling inequality and ensuring progress toward the SDGs and the 2030 Agenda. We note that this role can be expressed in a number of ways, including through advocacy and communication, service delivery, monitoring and research. We also recognise that civil society organisations are a significant means through which citizens can exercise their right to participate in development.

67. We commit to contribute to development of policy space and an enabling environment for the formation and operation of civil society organisations, as agreed in the Busan Partnership and consistent with agreed international commitments, to ensure their full participation in development processes at all levels.

68. Civil society partners commit to:

a. adhere to the Istanbul Principles which incorporate the Busan Principles as an expression of mutual accountability with other relevant stakeholders in the Global Partnership;

b. be guided by the country-led results frameworks as relevant to their work as independent development partners in their own right;

c. respect and promote human rights and social justice. Civil society organisations pledge to develop and implement strategies, activities and practices that promote individual and collective human rights, including the right to development with dignity, decent work, social justice and equity for all people;

d. demonstrate a sustained organisational commitment to transparency, mutual accountability, and integrity in their internal operations; and

e. realise sustainable outcomes and impacts of their development actions, focusing on results and conditions for lasting change for people, with special emphasis on poor and marginalised populations, ensuring an enduring legacy for present and future generations.

Philanthropy

69. We acknowledge the essential contribution of philanthropy to development and progress towards the SDGs and the 2030 Agenda, not only through financial support that is often innovative, agile and quick, but also through knowledge and expertise, acting as catalytic agents of resources and relations. We welcome the efforts made to strengthen the effectiveness and quality of co-operation between and within philanthropy, governments and other development stakeholders, as reflected in the progress report of the piloting of the Guidelines for Effective Philanthropic Engagement.

70. We, the Global Partnership, encourage philanthropy to use country-led results frameworks in its work with development partners, in the spirit of the 2030 Agenda, and commit to:

a. furthering public-philanthropic partnerships for sustainable development; and

b. foster enabling policy environments for the philanthropy sector, including transparent and efficient legal and regulatory systems.

71. We recognise that this endeavour involves many initiatives, both within and beyond the Global Partnership. We will reach out to other international and national stakeholder platforms to ensure better dialogue, complementarity and mutual re-enforcement of support to 2030 Agenda.

Principle 4. Transparency and Accountability

72. We reiterate that the shared principles of transparency and accountability are relevant to all Global Partnership stakeholders including partner countries that provide and receive support, multilateral and bilateral organisations, local governments, development finance institutions, the business sector, civil society organisations, philanthropy, parliaments, labor organisations, implementing partners and beneficiaries.
73. We acknowledge the essential role of transparent and accountable national parliaments and local governments in achieving the 2030 Agenda, as localising the Agenda will guarantee that the needs of the communities are the drivers of co-operation. We commit to strengthen the capacity of local governments to play this role.
74. We note that primary use of national data is to inform inclusive national conversations, to track performance, to prioritise and to promote accountability. The Global Partnership therefore commits to strengthening country-level systems throughout the data cycle from creation to use, storage and deletion. The data produced from national-level processes is the building block for review at regional and global levels. We will support efforts to make data standards interoperable, allowing data from different sources to be more easily compared and used.
75. We also endorse open data standards and platforms that make data more accessible, understandable, and that promote focused and effective interventions. We encourage increased involvement of all stakeholders including data communities and the media to enhance data use at all levels.
76. Partner countries receiving support commit to:
- a. apply this principle and to develop, strengthen and maintain appropriate national systems, policies and processes to support their implementation;
  - b. involve parliaments, local governments, and non-state partners in the definition, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of development strategies;
  - c. intensify efforts to strengthen national statistical capacities and their independence and to support initiatives aimed at collecting and disseminating data in more effective and accessible ways;
  - d. increase transparency and the equal participation of all state and non-state partners in national planning and budgeting processes, including women-focused civil society organisations;
  - e. continue strengthening gender-responsive planning and budgeting by improving the systematic tracking of resource allocations for gender equality and the empowerment of women and girls;
  - f. accelerate and deepen efforts to collect, analyse, disseminate, harmonise and make full use of data disaggregated by demography (including sex, age and disability status) and geography to inform policy decisions and guide investments that can ensure that public expenditures are targeted appropriately, including to equally benefit both women and men and to leave no-one behind; and

g. update existing arrangements for mutual accountability at country level to reflect the breadth of development partners, paying attention to the inclusiveness and transparency of these joint assessment processes.

77. Development partners providing support commit to:

a. update institutional architecture, policies and information management systems, as needed, to make development co-operation more transparent, meeting the information needs of partner countries receiving support, citizens, and other Global Partnership stakeholders, and relying on open data international standards such as the International Aid Transparency Initiative (IATI) and the statistical standards of the OECD-DAC systems;

b. close data gaps by capacity building through appropriate financial and technical support to improve national statistical capacity to systematically collect, analyse, disseminate and use data disaggregated by sex and age;

c. work together to improve the availability, accuracy and use of open data on development co-operation at the country level;

d. support increased awareness and use of data in planning, delivering and monitoring development and humanitarian initiatives, especially at the country level, to drive effectiveness, engage stakeholders and citizens and improve development outcomes;

e. strive to publish data on all ongoing activities, as regularly as possible, including detailed forward-looking data as well as data on results and evaluations, wherever available; and

f. strengthen support to increase data use, including through the development of data visualisation and analysis tools, and assist partners that receive support to do likewise.

78. In addition, we respect the commitment of South-South Co-operation to enhance its development effectiveness through its own processes by continuing to increase its mutual accountability and transparency, and we welcome efforts to create more inclusive mutual accountability arrangements that reflect the diversity and scope of the emerging development co-operation landscape.

79. Parliaments will work to:

a. formulate laws that foster inclusive progress in support of achieving the SDGs; strengthen the fight against fraud and corruption; improve good governance in the public sector; and

b. be transparent and accountable in their oversight role in the management of public finances.

80. The business sector will work to:

- a. support effective development co-operation principles and commitments; and become increasingly transparent and responsive to all sections of society within their countries of operation in accordance with International Labour Organisation labour standards, United Nations Principles on Business and Human Rights and the OECD guidelines for multinational enterprises;
- b. perform due diligence in its entire value chain, becoming increasingly transparent about its operations, giving respect to freedom of association and collective bargaining and engaging in social dialogue;
- c. invest further in accounting for the social, environmental and economic impacts of its value chains, including for parliament, regulators, local government, labour, civil society, consumers and shareholders;
- d. collaborate on transparent and accountable management systems for public and private funds used in public-private arrangements; and
- e. ensure full transparency and co-operation with revenue authorities to enable efficient tax systems.

81. Civil society partners commit to implement practices that strengthen their transparency, accountability and development effectiveness, as guided by the Istanbul Principles and the International Framework for CSO Development Effectiveness.

82. They commit to:

- a. transparent relationships, freely and as equal partners, based on shared development goals and values, mutual respect, trust, organisational autonomy, long-term accompaniment, solidarity and global citizenship; and
- b. take proactive actions to improve and be fully accountable for development practices.

Our Greatest Challenge: Leaving No-One Behind

83. A successful, sustainable development agenda requires strong, dynamic and innovative partnerships. This is most urgently needed in the effort to leave no-one behind, where the combined contributions of partners working together can outweigh individual interventions and overcome impediments to inclusive outcomes.

Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women and Girls

84. We reaffirm that achieving gender equality, empowerment of all women and girls and the full realisation of their human rights are essential to achieving sustained, inclusive and equitable economic growth and sustainable development. We acknowledge that women and girls are powerful agents for change. They must enjoy equal opportunities with men and boys for participation, leadership and decision-making at all levels and in all areas, including on climate change and humanitarian responses.

85. We will continue to support gender equality and the empowerment of all women and girls as critical to development co-operation and effectiveness grounded in country priorities. We reaffirm commitments to end violence and discrimination against them as this is equally important to their full and equal participation in peaceful and inclusive societies.
86. We recognise the unique and essential role of women's civil society and human rights organisations, including feminist organisations, in advancing gender equality and the empowerment of all women and girls. We also note the importance of engaging men and boys as partners and stakeholders in achieving gender equality.
87. We will further reverse the trend of underinvestment in gender equality and women's empowerment by harnessing all conventional and innovative forms of financing - public, private, domestic and international – to achieve the goal of gender equality.
88. We, the Global Partnership, commit to:
  - a. prioritise investments in accessible, affordable and quality social infrastructure and essential services that reduce and redistribute women's unpaid care and domestic work, enabling their full participation in the economy, including the digital economy;
  - b. deepen inclusive multi-stakeholder partnerships for gender equality and women's empowerment at country, sub-regional, regional and global levels, including by ensuring the full and meaningful participation of gender equality advocates, women's organisations and national gender equality mechanisms;
  - c. continue to call for gender-responsive approaches and targeted action for women and girls in the formulation of all financial, economic, environmental and social policies;
  - d. encourage the business sector to contribute to advancing gender equality through promoting women's full and productive employment and decent work, equal pay for equal work or work of equal value, and equal opportunities, as well as protecting women against discrimination and abuse in the workplace. We support the Women's Empowerment Principles established by UN-Women and the Global Compact, and encourage increased investments in women-owned businesses; and
  - e. ensure meaningful consideration of gender equality and the participation of women and girls in the implementation and monitoring of the 2030 Agenda, at country, sub-regional, regional and global levels.

Youth

89. We reiterate our commitment under the 2030 Agenda and the Addis Ababa Action Agenda to invest in the development of children and youth furthest left behind. We recognise that investing in children and youth is critical to achieving inclusive, equitable and sustainable development for present and future generations, and we recognise the need to support countries that face particular challenges to make the requisite investments in this area. We also reaffirm the importance of urgently improving reporting on child-focused ODA and domestic spending for improved monitoring of progress on the above commitments.
90. We commit to:
- a. promote and protect the rights of children and youth, ensuring that they live free from violence, exploitation and harm in order to develop their full capabilities;
  - b. strengthen capacity and create the space and necessary mechanisms for the meaningful participation of children and youth in the implementation and the monitoring of the 2030 Agenda at the local, national and international level; and
  - c. promote the productive capacities of youth, expand economic and social opportunities for decent work.

Countries in Special Situations

91. We note the specific challenges in realising sustainable development faced by countries in special situations, including some in Africa, Least Developed Countries, Landlocked Developing Countries and Small Island Developing States, as well as Middle Income Countries. We also recognise major challenges which countries in conflict and post-conflict face in accessing development co-operation. We call for mechanisms that will mobilise the resources and partnerships needed to support country-led development priorities. In particular, we acknowledge the work of the New Deal for Engagement in Fragile States. We reassert the need to devise methodologies to better account for the complex and diverse realities of MICs.
92. We reaffirm that the long-term vision of international engagement in fragile states is to build an effective and resilient state, and other country institutions. Assisting states in building capacities will make them more resilient to the risks associated with conflict, atrocity crimes and situations of emerging crisis.
93. We, the Global Partnership, will redouble our efforts to ensure that all development co-operation serves to reinforce stability and addresses the multidimensional drivers of fragility and conflict identified by and at the country level.

Middle Income Countries

94. We recognise the specific issues faced by Middle Income Countries in their efforts to realise sustainable development. We recognise that the majority of the world's poor people reside in MICs.

We also acknowledge that ODA and other concessional finance is still important for a number of these countries and has a role to play for targeted results, taking into account the specific needs of these countries. We will explore ways to use development co-operation effectively to address the challenges in the development process faced by countries in this situation.

95. We emphasise that no-one will be left behind in development co-operation, and we will endeavour to reach the furthest behind first. We further note that the level of concessionality of international public finance should take into account the level of development of each recipient, including income level, institutional capacity and vulnerability, as well as the nature of the project to be funded, including its commercial viability. We also recognise the need to devise methodologies to better account for the complex and diverse realities of Middle Income Countries, such as multidimensional measurement approaches that go beyond the per capita income averages, in order to account for the three dimensions of sustainable development: economic, social and environmental.
96. We reiterate the need to ensure that development co-operation best contributes to addressing the opportunities and challenges presented by the diverse circumstances and complexities of Middle Income Countries through discussions in the relevant multilateral fora. We also reiterate the need for experience-sharing among MICs to address issues of inequality and social exclusion.
97. We, the Global Partnership, therefore commit to:
- a. ensure that development co-operation addresses the transition challenges of MICs in a differentiated and targeted manner; and
  - b. promote the use of multidimensional methods for measuring development progress.

Enhanced Engagement Between Humanitarian and Development Partners

98. We note the need for better ways of working between humanitarian and development partners. We should work collaboratively across institutional boundaries on the basis of comparative advantage, with respect for humanitarian principles. We note the need for development finance to leverage humanitarian support.
99. We recognise the link between peace and development, and the challenge to sustainable development posed by fragility and conflict, which not only impedes but can reverse decades of development gains. We take note of the principles set out in the New Deal by the g7+ countries that are, or have been, affected by conflict.
100. We, the Global Partnership, commit to:
- a. support the New Deal for Engagement in Fragile States as a set of guiding principles for co-ordinated action among development partners providing and receiving support, civil society and the business sector; and
  - b. address the challenges in improving the effectiveness and results of development co-operation, in particular ODA, for countries in fragile situations.

PART THREE: A PLATFORM FOR ACTION

MANDATE AND WORKING ARRANGEMENTS

101. We, the Global Partnership, will demonstrate practical contributions to the United Nations High-Level Political Forum. The HLPF is the only forum with a universal mandate to oversee follow-up and review of the implementation of 2030 Agenda at the global level. The Global Partnership will also enhance its complementarity with the United Nations Development Co-operation Forum (DCF), and work with the Financing for Development (FfD) Forum. The Global Partnership, as a distinct multi-stakeholder platform, provides a bridge between global processes at the HLPF, as well as the DCF and FfD Forum, and country-level utility for its stakeholders. To this effect we have updated our mandate and working arrangements, which are available in Annex 1.
102. We recognise the need to refine the existing Monitoring Framework, taking into account emerging issues and new methods of development co-operation. This includes contributions to effective development co-operation from emerging partners and non-sovereign flows of capital, as well as the need to strengthen the Framework's utility in various country and regional contexts.
103. One of our main contributions to implementing the 2030 Agenda is to provide a platform for knowledge exchange and learning at country, regional and global levels. New insights inform political decisions and commitments, which drive renewed efforts to innovate and improve the quality of development co-operation. The Global Partnership Initiatives (GPIs), regional and country-level platforms can test new approaches, generate evidence and develop innovative ways to drive implementation the principles of development effectiveness. We acknowledge their contribution to our forward looking agenda and welcome the new GPIs that were announced during our meeting (see Annex 3). Our call to action is to invest in making generated knowledge accessible to all constituencies.
104. We will further adapt our working arrangements to the new requirements of the 2030 Agenda and the specific role the Global Partnership should play in its implementation. We will:
  - a. amplify the multi-stakeholder nature of the Global Partnership;
  - b. ensure a transparent process to appoint Co-Chairs and Steering Committee members;
  - c. strengthen a constituency model that ensures all members participate;
  - d. promote the Global Partnership's country-focused approach, by investing in capacity of countries to lead and engage in multi-stakeholder partnerships at the country level.

OUR APPRECIATION

105. We wish to thank the Government of Kenya as host country of the second High-Level Meeting and the outgoing Co-Chairs and Steering Committee members, for their dedication and steadfast leadership and support for the cause of development effectiveness. In addition, we wish to acknowledge the contributions of the Joint Support Team, based at OECD and UNDP.
106. We note with appreciation and gratitude the readiness of incoming Co-Chairs and Steering Committee members to push forward with us this important partnership for the shared benefit of people, planet, prosperity and peace.

ANNEXES

ANNEX 1. RENEWED MANDATE

1. VISION. The vision of the Global Partnership is to maximise the effectiveness of all forms of co-operation for development for the shared benefit of people, planet, prosperity and peace.
2. MANDATE. The Global Partnership shall contribute to the achievement of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and regional strategies for sustainable development by promoting effective development co-operation geared towards ending all forms of poverty and reducing inequality, advancing sustainable development and ensuring that no-one is left behind. The Global Partnership shall promote mutual accountability to hold each other responsible for more effective development co-operation through (i) a country-focused approach that helps developing countries make the best use of development co-operation to realise their national development goals with support of regional platforms; (ii) generating data and evidence on development stakeholders' progress in meeting their commitments to more effective development co-operation; and (iii) inclusive dialogue amongst development stakeholders at local, country, regional and global levels. In delivering its mandate, the Global Partnership will promote modalities of development co-operation that contribute to the universal objective of leaving no-one behind.
3. CONSTITUENCY. The Global Partnership brings together, on an equal footing, key stakeholders of the development co-operation agenda from developing countries (countries receiving development co-operation, as well countries of dual character that both receive and provide development co-operation); developed countries (countries providing development co-operation); multilateral and bilateral institutions; civil society; academia; parliaments; local governments; regional platforms and organisations; trade unions; the business sector; and philanthropy. The partnership is founded on the recognition that sustainable results and impact of development co-operation depend on joint efforts and investments. The partners are united by their shared commitment to inclusive partnership founded on common principles and goals and building on the comparative advantage of each. Regional platforms and organisations provide input regarding region-specific issues and approaches.
4. FUNCTIONS. The Global Partnership has five core functions:
  - (a) Supporting effectiveness at the country level
5. The success of the Global Partnership hinges on its ability to drive global progress and support countries in strategically managing diverse development co-operation resources, steering effective practices to deliver on national development targets. To this end, the Global Partnership will strengthen its country-focused approach, supporting countries to advance the effectiveness principles at the national level. It will ensure that country-level evidence on progress in and challenges to effective development co-operation informs local, national, regional and global multi-stakeholder dialogue to drive political decisions and promote behaviour change to scale up development co-operation results. The work at country level will include support for mainstreaming effectiveness principles into development co-operation practices; support to multi-stakeholder dialogue platforms building on data; and use of data from Global Partnership monitoring in the United Nations High-Level Political Forum on Sustainable Development and Financing for Development review processes.

(b) Generating evidence for accountability and SDG follow-up

6. Moving forward, the Global Partnership shall be a recognised source of data, evidence and analysis to track progress on effectiveness commitments. In carrying out its renewed mandate, the Global Partnership shall draw upon its comparative advantages and focus on generating reliable and timely country-level data and evidence to inform decision making on effective development co-operation. To this end, the Global Partnership shall conduct biennial monitoring rounds on the effectiveness of development co-operation. The monitoring will continue to be country-led and supported by regional and global platforms, based on mutually-agreed and updated indicators to measure all relevant performance. It will promote mutual accountability by highlighting areas of progress and challenges requiring further work. Policy-relevant lessons and innovative solutions produced by Global Partnership Initiatives will complement monitoring findings. The data and evidence generated will feed into the UN-led follow-up and review of the SDGs at the High-Level Political Forum on Sustainable Development.

(c) Sharing knowledge and lessons

7. The Global Partnership provides a platform for knowledge exchange and learning on effective development co-operation. Across principles, goals and indicators there are countries, development partners and non-state actors that demonstrate the capacity to progress on agreed effectiveness principles and commitments. Global Partnership Initiatives and regional platforms are also producing lessons and generating evidence around specific commitments and innovative areas of effective development co-operation. This indicates great potential for identifying success factors, sharing lessons and making fuller use of knowledge generated through these efforts to promote mutual accountability and learning.

(d) Facilitating specialised dialogue

8. Policy dialogue is vital to link the evidence generated through monitoring to the formulation of development co-operation policies and instruments that serve country needs. The Global Partnership promotes action-oriented dialogue among relevant development stakeholders, which pools the comparative advantage of relevant public and non-governmental actors to address bottlenecks, and develop or scale up innovative development solutions.

(e) Building political momentum for effective development co-operation

9. Producing the behaviour change needed to make development co-operation more effective depends on political leadership informed by sound evidence and policy recommendations. Centring its mission on data and evidence for effective development co-operation will enable the Global Partnership to make a distinct contribution to national, regional and global processes that can build political momentum for change in development co-operation practices. To this end, the Global Partnership shall enhance synergies with the Financing for Development Forum, the High-Level Political Forum on Sustainable Development and the Development Co-operation Forum. The Global Partnership shall contribute to these processes as well as to national and regional dialogue, by generating the country-level data and evidence on development co-operation effectiveness needed to drive behaviour change and steer high-level political commitment for development co-operation policies and practices that are relevant, effective and timely.

10. DELIVERING FOR A NEW TRANSFORMATIVE DEVELOPMENT AGENDA: Collective action through the Global Partnership has driven stakeholders to improve the way development co-operation is delivered, contributing to gains in effectiveness. The 2030 Agenda calls for scaling up efforts to improve the effectiveness of development co-operation; action to mobilise the transformative power of private resources to deliver on sustainable development; and for enhanced exchanges between constituencies engaged in North-South, South-South and Triangular Co-operation to promote knowledge sharing. Carrying out its core functions, the Global Partnership's constituencies must unblock bottlenecks and sustain commitments to implement effectiveness principles at country level. The Global Partnership must do more to shape a meaningful public-private collaboration agenda for effective development co-operation, and intensify its work to facilitate knowledge sharing and learning from diverse modalities of development co-operation. The Global Partnership will address, as follows, these three strategic and interrelated challenges in order to strengthen its contribution to the 2030 Agenda.

(a) Mutual Accountability: Unblocking bottlenecks and sustaining commitments to effective development co-operation

11. Mutual accountability to each other for meeting effectiveness commitments underpins the work of the Global Partnership across all areas of work. Development stakeholders reaffirm the existing effectiveness principles as the accountability framework for measuring progress in improving the effectiveness of their development co-operation. The Global Partnership's constituencies shall commit to unblocking the bottlenecks that hinder progress on the implementation of these principles for effective development co-operation, and to updating the Monitoring Framework to reflect the challenges of the 2030 Agenda, including the pledge to leave no-one behind. Current effectiveness commitments on alignment, predictability, transparency and accountability relate mainly to public partners. The new development paradigm calls for effectiveness commitments that reflect the distinctive contribution of the increasingly diverse actors in development co-operation. The effectiveness of development co-operation shall also be assessed against the ability of stakeholders to learn from different approaches and modalities of development co-operation; promote synergies between the growing diversity in technical and financial options available to developing countries to drive national development strategies; and respond to the capacity-building needs of countries and local governments struggling with new forms of vulnerabilities. Ensuring a better enabling environment for CSOs and local governments and strengthening their engagement remain a core requirement for a people-centred agenda.
12. The way forward: The renewed mandate of the Global Partnership is an opportunity to unblock bottlenecks on existing effectiveness commitments while also embracing the ambitions of the 2030 Agenda and regional strategies for sustainable development. To this end, the Global Partnership shall continue to promote behaviour change for implementation of existing effectiveness commitments and adapt its framework to ensure that it is relevant for dual countries and southern partners. It will develop targets to assess the effectiveness of partnerships between public actors, including local governments, and businesses and philanthropy, working together to take development results to scale. Effectiveness commitments should also guide adapted modalities of development co-operation to advance the universal goal of leaving no-one behind. The country-level monitoring process shall be strengthened to ensure the integrity and relevance of data, ensuring practicality and cost effectiveness.

(b) Shared Benefit: Unleashing the potential of development co-operation to attract inclusive private investment

13. The SDGs call for “urgent action to mobilise the transformative power of private resources to deliver on sustainable development” and to help combat illicit financial flows that deprive the people of the benefits of common resources. They signal the need for the public sector to set a clear direction, monitoring frameworks, regulation and incentive structures to attract private investment that reinforces sustainable development. The Global Partnership is challenged to deepen collaboration with the business sector as part of the effectiveness agenda ensuring checks and balances. The renewed mandate of the Global Partnership provides an opportunity to commit development actors to leverage development co-operation to attract inclusive business investments based on shared benefit. Through development co-operation, governments at central and local levels, bilateral and multilateral partners, philanthropy and civil society can play a catalytic role, helping companies advance innovation and investment that contribute to eradicating poverty and reducing inequality.
14. The way forward: The Global Partnership shall set clear effectiveness commitments as the development community engages in partnerships between governments, civil society and the business sector that generate shared benefit for business strategies and development goals. Accountability and transparency are essential to ensure that these arrangements effectively contribute to economic development and poverty reduction. The Global Partnership shall also promote a mutually-agreed framework to monitor public-private partnerships, helping to deliver real results and combat illicit financial flows. Furthermore, the renewed mandate of the Global Partnership will strive to help development partners adapt their practices and instruments for partnership with the business sector, including through the creation of a caucus of likeminded business and foundation representatives to interact with other interested Global Partnership stakeholders. Such a transformation is also vital for Middle Income Countries that are looking for innovative modalities of development co-operation in their efforts to leave no-one behind.

(c) Mutual Learning: Learning from different approaches to strengthen the effectiveness of development co-operation

15. Drawing smartly together the diversity of options available across stakeholders to mobilise knowledge, technologies and financing can scale up the impact of development co-operation to the level needed to attain the SDGs. Intensified efforts to bring together the learning, knowledge and technology available across constituencies – governments, development partners, business sector, philanthropy, CSOs, academia and local actors – can help scale development solutions at a faster pace. The renewal of the mandate of the Global Partnership is an opportunity to shape new modalities of mutual learning from diverse approaches to development co-operation and development solutions, recognising their unique characteristics and respective merits.
16. The way forward: The Global Partnership needs to build mutual learning from innovative approaches and solutions tried and tested by different stakeholders into its way of working. The Global Partnership shall review its modus operandi to develop a mutual learning loop from country-level evidence, areas of progress, learning from different modalities of development co-operation with specific attention to southern partners and partnership options to strengthen the effectiveness of development co-operation. Key modalities for improved mutual learning will include intensified focus on identifying lessons at central and local levels, through evidence and technical analysis, and disseminating these; and specialised policy dialogues among diverse constituencies to facilitate knowledge exchange and synergies between diverse development constituencies.

GOVERNANCE AND WORKING ARRANGEMENTS

17. The new global development context and the renewed mandate of the Global Partnership call for adjustments to its technical working arrangements and modalities. The following proposed adjustments are intended to ensure the operationalisation of the renewed mandate and the effective implementation of Global Partnership principles and commitments.
18. The proposed adjustments cover two sets of issues:
  - a. the roles and responsibilities of Co-Chairs, the Steering Committee and Joint Support Team, including the proposed addition of a fourth non-executive Co-Chair; and
  - b. changes to the way the Global Partnership operates to realise its vision, including the proposal of a biennial programme of work.

Roles and Responsibilities

A. Co-Chairs

19. Since its inception, three governmental Co-Chairs have guided the work of the Global Partnership, both personally and through their representatives. To date, the three Co-Chairs represent: (i) recipients of development co-operation; (ii) recipients and providers of development co-operation; and (iii) providers of development co-operation. Co-Chairs are also members of the Global Partnership Steering Committee, advocating on behalf of their constituencies.
20. Under this proposal, the Co-Chairs will continue to represent the Global Partnership externally, guide its work and be responsible for facilitating the delivery of its overall objectives. However, going forward, the role of Co-Chairs will also include the positioning of the Global Partnership within the Follow-up and Review of the Sustainable Development Goals and AAAA commitments, as well as strengthening the links with the High-Level Political Forum, Financing for Development and Development Co-operation Forum, as well as regional strategies. Additionally, Co-Chairs will focus on guiding Global Partnership operations to strengthen country-level implementation of effective development co-operation principles, as well as strengthening the work done by the members of the Steering Committee and the Joint Support Team to ensure delivery of the agreed programme of work.
21. The main functions of Co-Chairs are to:
  - a. ensure that momentum for implementing agreed effective development co-operation commitments is accelerated at the highest political levels among all stakeholder groups;
  - b. spearhead resource mobilisation efforts to meet the financial and in-kind needs necessary for the full implementation of the programme of work of the Global Partnership;

- c. lead outreach to the full range of partners in development co-operation, including but not limited to, the business sector and emerging development partners;
- d. represent the Global Partnership in international fora related to development co-operation; and
- e. apprise the Steering Committee on progress in implementing the costed and agreed programme of work in between official Steering Committee meetings, through biannual updates (between each Committee meeting).

22. Co-Chairs will continue to be appointed for a two-year period. Governmental Co-Chairs are appointed at Ministerial or Vice-Ministerial level and will represent the full spectrum of development co-operation, ensuring adequate regional rotation and balance. Co-Chairs should engage with constituencies in securing a successor, to be endorsed by the Steering Committee through an inclusive and transparent process, as early as possible, but no later than one month before the end of their term. Current Co-Chairs will also be responsible for overseeing the transition to the new Co-Chair over the last six months of his / her term, as applicable.

A non-executive Co-Chair in the Leadership of the Global Partnership

(While the Steering Committee has in principle signaled its openness to considering the addition of a fourth, non-executive Co-Chair, a proposal for the modalities and functions of this seat should be presented by the non-executive members of the Steering Committee at the Committee's first meeting post-HLM2 for further consideration.)

Non-executive representatives in the Steering Committee have suggested that a fourth, non-executive Co-Chair could amplify the true multi-stakeholder nature of the Global Partnership. Potential advantages of a fourth, non-executive Co-Chair may include: (i) making the leadership more inclusive and multi-stakeholder; (ii) fostering mutual accountability at the highest decision-making levels; (iii) bringing in additional expertise on improving engagement with non-state development actors; (iv) promoting democratic ownership by example; and (v) allowing inputs from non-executive stakeholders to shape the agenda of Steering Committee, High-Level and other Meetings of the Global Partnership from a very early stage.

A non-executive Co-Chair would be nominated at the highest possible level (comparable seniority with the government Co-Chairs) and on a rotational basis, mindful of regional balance, from the following constituencies: civil society organisations, trade unions, local governments, parliaments, philanthropy and the business sector, according to consultation among non-executive members of the Steering Committee. The non-executive Co-Chair would represent all these constituencies, striving to build consensus among them as far as possible. These constituencies will all retain their seats as members of the Steering Committee. Rotation would be expected to take place every two years, at the same time as governmental Co-Chairs, and in consideration of the heterogeneity of the non-executive stakeholder group.

B. Steering Committee

23. The Steering Committee is the main decision-making body of the Global Partnership. It provides the strategic leadership and co-ordination necessary for ensuring successful implementation of the programme of work for the Global Partnership. Decision making in the Steering Committee shall strive to be consensus-based through inclusive dialogue and transparent process.
24. The Steering Committee will consist of the Co-Chairs of the Global Partnership and other appointed members.
25. The Steering Committee will focus on the following core responsibilities:
  - a. providing executive guidance to the implementation and monitoring of a costed programme of work for the Global Partnership;
  - b. championing / co-championing the specific work-streams in the programme of work of the Global Partnership and / or Global Partnership Initiatives to help deliver the programme of work;
  - c. serving as advocates and ambassadors of the Global Partnership at national, regional and international levels to ensure that the priorities and key messages of the Global Partnership are promoted and reflected in relevant fora;
  - d. increasing focus on implementing development effectiveness commitments at the country level;
  - e. consulting with, and therefore providing inclusive and authoritative representation of, constituencies with a stake in the work of the Global Partnership; and
  - f. undertaking other tasks as may arise from High-Level Meetings or as agreed at Steering Committee meetings.
26. Members of the Steering Committee will be nominated by their respective constituencies for review and endorsement at Steering Committee meetings in order to ensure regional balance and continuity as a whole. The Steering Committee will represent all actors with a stake in development, wishing to engage in the work of the Global Partnership. A matrix to ensure representation throughout all regions will be annexed to the programme of work for the 2017-2018 period.

Joint Support Team

27. The ambitions of the Global Partnership set out in the Nairobi Outcome Document and mandate require a strong support structure in the form of the Joint Support Team, which will continue to be sourced by the OECD and UNDP. Both organisations will continue to draw on their existing structures, respective mandates and areas of comparative advantage to work together in an efficient and complementary manner. Their support to the Global Partnership is contingent upon continued and adequate funding being made available to both organisations from stakeholders invested in the Global Partnership.
28. Members of the Global Partnership and its Steering Committee will be expected to lead in the implementation of commitments as well as contributing to the substance of the Global Partnership's work. The main responsibilities of the Joint Support Team build on the deliverables agreed in the 2012 Global Partnership mandate:
- a. develop, refine and implement the global methodology for monitoring the implementation of agreed commitments for endorsement by the Steering Committee;
  - b. produce and disseminate relevant analytical work, including regular global reports based on monitoring of agreed commitments and scoping of analytical work produced by the Global Partnership Initiatives to inform political dialogue and facilitate knowledge sharing to make co-operation more effective at country level;

- c. carry out periodical 'horizon-scanning' analyses of the evolving development co-operation context and the incentives for engagement by each Global Partnership stakeholder;
- d. provide demand-driven advisory support at country level on the implementation of partnership and accountability frameworks in developing countries (contingent on adequate resourcing and prioritisation by the Steering Committee in the costed programme of work);
- e. organise ministerial-level and other meetings of the Global Partnership; and
- f. deliver Secretariat and Advisory Services to the Steering Committee and Co-Chairs.

29. Each biennial programme of work will specify more detailed roles for the Joint Support Team based on operational objectives (see below).

Operational Changes

Meetings

- 30. The renewed mandate calls for greater support to making development co-operation more effective at country level and targeted policy dialogue, data and evidence for global follow-up and review of the 2030 Agenda at the United Nations.
- 31. The Global Partnership's High-Level Meetings will continue to provide an instrumental platform to uphold accountability and generate new momentum to implement commitments. Under the guidance of the Steering Committee, stand-alone High-Level Meetings will be held in an extended cycle adapted to the calendar of global level conferences and meetings in order to solidify political support for effective development co-operation, as a prerequisite for sustainable progress in the implementation of the 2030 Agenda and broader sustainable development agendas. The stand-alone High-Level Meetings will be interspersed with high-level segments, to take place in the margins of relevant meetings on development finance and co-operation. Senior-Level Meetings at the Director-General level will also be considered to keep political momentum high in between stand-alone High-Level Meetings.
- 32. Steering Committee meetings will be held twice a year, if possible back-to-back with other meetings, and will focus on the implementation of the agreed programme of work. These meetings will be informed by annual technical exchanges and by specialised policy dialogues that will help to identify practical solutions to accelerating progress on specific bottlenecks among communities of interest, co-ordinated with the work of Global Partnership Initiatives and their workshops, regional platforms and dialogues to engage actors with similar interests and objectives to build consensus and strengthen advocacy around their priorities for effective development co-operation.
- 33. In addition, national multi-stakeholder dialogues on development effectiveness and regional meetings will be promoted through the Co-Chairs, Steering Committee members and wider Global Partnership membership, which will aim to translate deliberations into action at country level.

Programme of Work

34. The work by the Co-Chairs, Steering Committee and Joint Support Team will be guided by a biennial, costed programme of work. The programme of work should be underpinned by a comprehensive theory of change and will be the main instrument to ensure clear targets and responsibilities for the implementation of all aspects of the work of the Global Partnership in any two-year period. It will contain costed lines of activity and will be approved by the Steering Committee. It will also include the critical threshold of resources that need to be secured / guaranteed for the Joint Support Team to enable its core support. It is proposed that logistical and operational support relating to Steering Committee meetings and High-Level Meetings be included in the biennial programme of work, if available from the identified HLM host, and provided through voluntary contributions specific to these activities to ensure their financing alongside substantive work and deliverables. Resource mobilisation for High-Level Meetings will be driven and strongly encouraged by Steering Committee members.
35. The Steering Committee will agree on the process and content of the work programme.
36. The responsibility for ensuring progress within specific areas of the costed programme of work will be delegated to working groups led by Steering Committee members. Each of these components are subject to periodic review in order to ensure their continued relevance to the work of the Global Partnership as a whole. The Steering Committee may request the engagement of specialised advisory bodies to support the accomplishment of the programme of work, insofar as resources allow.
37. The Co-Chairs and Steering Committee members share the responsibility for mobilising resources to meet any funding shortfall and prioritising the programme of work in line with available funding. The programme of work will also contain an explicit provision for periodic independent evaluations of the work of the Global Partnership to be conducted at determined times, e.g. every four years.

ANNEX 2. FINDINGS FROM SECOND MONITORING ROUND

1. The 2016 Progress Report enjoyed a record level of participation. Eighty-one low and middle-income countries led reporting that encompassed inputs from 74 development organisations and hundreds of civil society organisations, business sector representatives, trade unions, philanthropy and local governments. Their contributions reflected the increasingly diverse nature of development co-operation. The data and evidence generated from the second round of Global Partnership monitoring covers nearly 90 per cent of development co-operation financed in these 81 countries, and findings provide evidence of progress and challenges towards realisation of the four principles of effective development co-operation.
2. The development community is adopting a decisive focus on results for more impact at the country level: 99 per cent of countries have development strategies at the national and sector levels; 74 per cent of countries have set out their priorities, targets and indicators in a single strategic planning document. In addition, 85 per cent of new programmes and projects supported by development partners are aligned to country-led results frameworks.
3. Evidence reveals a shift towards more inclusive partnerships amongst governments, civil society organisations and the business sector. In 70 per cent of countries, the government and the business sector express equally strong interest in strengthening dialogue, with issues of mutual benefit offering an entry point for building a common public-private agenda for sustainable development. Almost 90 per cent of governments consult CSOs on national development policy. Amongst themselves, CSOs have also improved co-ordination for programming and engagement. However, the 2016 Progress Report also mentions that less than one half of local governments and non-state partners are involved in the monitoring exercise.

4. Transparency is also growing, with more publicly available information on development co-operation than before: 72 per cent of development partners assessed for transparency achieved a 'good' score in their reporting to at least one of the three international databases on development co-operation finance and 39 per cent achieved 'excellent' in reporting to one or more systems. In parallel, countries have taken strides to enhance the transparency of their budgeting procedures: they now record 66 per cent of development co-operation finance in national budgets that are subject to parliamentary oversight. Furthermore, 47 per cent of countries are tracking public allocations for gender equality and women's empowerment.
5. While these gains are encouraging, they are coupled with an overall need to adapt to a dynamic and evolving development landscape, as well as specific areas where concerted effort is required to unlock bottlenecks. For example, development partners use government sources and systems to track results for only 52 per cent of interventions – meaning that broadly half continue to rely on other sources of information. Similarly, governments are engaged in the evaluation of final results for only 49 per cent of development partner interventions.
6. Overall performance by countries in strengthening their own systems is mixed: while 18 per cent of countries – including several fragile states and small-island developing states – have improved their public financial management systems, 23 per cent have experienced a decline and 58 per cent of countries show no substantial change. Also, development partners channel only 50 per cent of development co-operation finance through countries' public financial management and procurement systems.
7. Inclusiveness is essential for ensuring that development processes and results are widely owned. Yet only 51 per cent of countries have all the elements in place for meaningful dialogue with CSOs. In 63 per cent of countries, the potential for quality public-private dialogue is affected by a lack of champions to facilitate dialogue; in 81 per cent, there is a scarcity of instruments and resources to translate public-private dialogue into action.
8. To be effective, countries need to manage diverse financial flows in a complementary and strategic manner. Yet development partners' improvements in medium-term predictability of development co-operation have been limited to only four per cent, reaching 74 per cent in 2016. A major institutional and cultural shift is needed to arrive at regular publication of real-time information that meets country needs for planning and managing development co-operation.
9. The transparency and inclusiveness of country-level mutual reviews also require improvement: less than half of countries involve local governments and non-state stakeholders in these assessments or make the results public. Moreover, these review processes continue to be largely formulated around traditional development assistance models and require adaptation to the evolving partnership approaches. Finally, the evidence has shown that across principles and indicators, development partners demonstrate the capacity and willingness to progress on agreed effectiveness principles. This indicates potential for identifying success factors, sharing lessons and facilitating mutual learning to help accelerate realisation of the 2030 Agenda.

ANNEX 3. GLOBAL PARTNERSHIP INITIATIVES

This annex contains a list of 29 initiatives that aim to advance specific commitments for effective development co-operation, as well as make progress in new and innovative areas of the Global Partnership.
